

Julius Caesar

William Shakespeare

When Julius Caesar, a powerful Roman leader, comes back home after winning against his rivals' sons, people celebrate his victory. However, some senators, including his close friend Brutus, worry that Caesar could become a danger to the republic and plan to kill him.

Julius Caesar is stabbed to death at the Senate.

But did the people who planned against Caesar manage to keep Rome as a republic?

